Case Studies in Pharmacy Ethics Oct 25 2020 Pharmacists constantly face ethical choices -- sometimes dramatic matters of life-and-death decisions, but more often subtle, less conspicuous choices that are nonetheless important. Case Studies in Pharmacy Ethics identifies and discusses the broad range of ethics issues pharmacists confront in practice. Ranging from situations faced in direct patient care to broader issues, this book uses cases to explore topics and the ethical framework within which practitioners make decisions about such issues as assisted suicide, conscientious refusal, pain management, and confidentiality as well as the equitable distribution of drug resources within institutions or managed care organizations and clinical studies on vulnerable populations. As the scope of the pharmacist's role expands, pharmacists find themselves facing new ethical challenges. This third edition accounts for some of the many changes in pharmacy practice and in the delivery of health care since the second edition. It includes an entirely new chapter on health insurance and health system planning, and a discussion of the impact of the Affordable Care Act and cases that are updated to reflect current pharmacy practice models. It serves as a valuable resource regarding topics that are both specific to pharmacy practice and those that involve the health care system more generally.

Pharmaceutical Interrogations Oct 17 2022 Excerpt from Pharmaceutical Interrogations: A List of Classified Questions Upon Subjects Pertaining to Pharmacy It is not the object of the following exercises to afford a short cut method of preparation for Board examinations (a method always hurtful to those who attempt it), but by means of a classified list of questions to stimulate the regular and systematic study of subjects which are frequently pursued irregularly and unsystematically. One advantage of this method is that it may be carried on under circumstances which would render more consecutive study impracticable. Perhaps but few days elapse, even in the busiest stores, when there are not moments which might well be employed in the investigation of some practical question, provided the question is presented. Thus, by the utilization of time, which might otherwise be spent in profitless conversation, the student may develop a capacity for independent investigation and lay the foundation for a thorough and lasting education in pharmacy. A desire to encourage such a disposition among druggists' clerks and students of pharmacy has been the chief incentive to the preparation of the following pages. Case Studies in Pharmacy Ethics Nov 25 2020 Pharmacists face ethical choices constantly -- sometimes dramatic life-and-death decisions, but more often subtle, less conspicuous choices that are nonetheless important. Among the topics confronted are assisted suicide, conscientious refusal, pain management, equitable distribution of drug resources within institutions and managed care plans, confidentiality, and alternative and non-traditional therapies. Veatch and Haddad's book, first published in 1999, was the first collection of case studies based on the real experiences of practicing pharmacists, for use as a teaching tool for pharmacy students. The second edition accounts for the many changes in pharmacy since 1999, including assisted suicide in Oregon, the purchasing of less expensive drugs from Canada, and the influence of managed care on prescriptions. The presentation of some cases is shortened, most are revised and updated, and two new chapters have been added. The first new chapter presents a new model for analyzing cases, while the second focuses on the ethics of new drug distribution systems, for example hospitals where pharmacists are forced to choose drugs based on cost-effectiveness, and internet based pharmacies.
