From one of the top HR specialists in the world comes this much-needed guide to help people maximize productivity and increase revenue. Whether it's in corporate America or in our own living rooms, people are wasting time. From the minute we wake up and check our Facebook page or emails—before we even crawl out of bed—to late at night when we stay up longer than we should, watching our favorite show. There's a precise moment that falls between working enough hours to be productive and working too many hours, yielding a diminishing marginal return. The difference between the person able to master this and most Americans that fail miserably at it is quality of life! If one continues to work past this moment, a negative return will ensue, and that negative return produces guilt. It lowers the amount of time for recreational activities and spending time with family. We've siloed productivity to our work life, however; the impact on our personal life is often loss. An alarming 39% of workers in high-tech companies believe they are depressed, as reported by PC Magazine in December 2018. 72% of people who have daily stress and anxiety say it interferes with their lives—anxiety and stress alone have reduced productivity by 56%. More than 80% of people have experienced some form of anxiety, stress, or depression in the workplace. People are spending more time at work than at home or with their loved ones; or, if they are at home, they are working. They are always “on.” As a result of this disparity, people are not fully living their lives. And the “work-life balance” marketed by some HR consulting firms and employers simply does not work. It's all work and no life! Studies have also proven that when people are unhappy in their personal lives or careers, their productivity goes down and everything and everyone around them suffers. This causes a domino effect, which trickles into every area of their lives. Previous generations used to say, “Work harder,” but we've now learned we must “work smarter.” Polak has practiced and tested his methods in hundreds of opportunities and has been paid millions by the largest corporations in the world to share these tools. He feels that every individual and business should have these tools, and will share them with us here. Be a Small Business with BIG IMPACT Called the “professor of harsh reality,” Dan S. Kennedy, joined by local-level marketing specialist Jeff Slutsky, delivers a hard-to-swallow truth to local small business owners like you: You Are in a Fight for Your Life. As a local small business you're vulnerable to distant online discounters, big box retailers, and other competition, you've got to do more than merely get customers—you have to keep them FOR LIFE. And, you have to win them over where your competition can't—at the street level. Kennedy and Slutsky present local business owners, retailers, service providers, restaurateurs, and professional practice owners with a tactical grassroots marketing plan to help increase customer retention, generate greater referrals, and build a thriving business for the long-term. Covers: 9 inconvenient truths of grassroots marketing Zero-Based Marketing—the solution when you figure out traditional and “non-traditional” marketing is failing you How to use the media as an extension of personality and of relationship—NOT a substitute for it Why most local marketing programs fail and what you need to do to succeed (a 7-Step Plan and tactics) On-site promotions—increase revenue without spending money, time or leaving your operation How to use—and how to waste dollars on—the Internet and other technology PLUS gain access to: FREE - Glazer-Kennedy University Webinar Series FREE - Elite Gold Insider's Circle Membership* FREE - Income Explosion Guide & CD

You have to work SMART! Book by David Xavier Sanchez "A treasure trove of ideas for the new working world." - Jo Youle, Chief Executive, Missing People In a world still adjusting to the impact of the pandemic, remote and hybrid working is new territory for most people. But many managers can be poorly equipped to deal with it: the more casual ways of managing in a physical office simply don't work with remote teams, and most tasks will be more challenging when conducted at a distance. Aspects of this will be great news for some people: managing remote teams can often raise the bar for leaders and managers, as well as for the teams themselves. But office-based, face-to-face leadership, while certainly effective, is often more informal and ad hoc, and a number of basic management tasks can be much harder to complete remotely: - managing workloads and performance; - resolving problems and miscommunications; - motivation (and the lack of); - professional development and ongoing training; and - identifying, setting and measuring goals and targets. This new title shows how leaders, managers and team members can raise their games to meet the challenges of 21st century leadership and our new age of working. Having a Vision, Setting Goals, Planning, Prioritizing, Organizing, Managing Time etc., How important do you think, these are for you to be leading a successful and fulfilling life? The answer, even from a school going teenager is an obvious one. EXTREMELY IMPORTANT! Is there enough information, or knowledge available to an individual in order to learn how to go about adopting these extremely important ways of living? YES, OF COURSE! So, are you well organized, planned, and have a vision for your life and set growth-oriented goals, well sorted with your priorities of life, and have managed time for all that is important to you and are leading a fulfilling life? The answer will be not so obvious and will vary from not-at-all to a defiant yes, or it will be a doubtful maybe to a pretentious "of course!" But the honest truth in most cases is quite certainly a big NO! Let me explain this: Usually, if you are well sorted in personal life, then your professional career may have been compromised. Or your personal health is taking a toll as you do your best in trying to balance various demands at work and at home. And in all the balancing acts your personal space is reduced to those fleeting moments of cheap entertainment, a drink or two at the bar, social media or to watching your favourite TV show or sport or other addictions. Yes, you want to be good at home, good to yourself, good to your spouse, children, family, and, of course, you want to be great at work too! But, balancing all of this and doing justice to all your commitments seem impossible and anyone who claims to have got it all set right must either be a liar or a superhuman! Isn't it? You do not ever seem to have time or energy to meet all of life's demands and yet there are others who seem to be able to do a lot more. How? If you are would like to be on top of everything in life and are willing to believe that it is possible for you to learn to do so, read on. What you are about to read is nothing exceptional in terms of its contents. It has been written or said many times by different people and I have borrowed many of those ideas and concepts to drive my point, that's all. I have tried to present my perspective using known, freely available or even cliched concepts so that you will find it easier to carry on with practicing and adapting these ideas, revising them or even researching as and when you feel the need. All that I am trying to do here is, inspire you to take charge of your life with more energy, enthusiasm, and ownership. I'm doing so because I know it can be done. Like I learned it, you too can learn the way of living an extraordinary life with ordinary intelligence. You don't have to be or do anything exceptional but will be required to see things radically differently and do enough to start believing in what you think. Imagine if your best just got better every single day In Your Best Just Got Better, productivity expert Jason Womack teaches readers that working longer hours doesn't make up for a flawed approach to productivity and performance. Workers need to clarify their habits, build mindset-based strategies, and be proactive. Womack's signature "workplace performance" techniques offer specific strategies to consistently and incrementally improve performance.
